CHICAGO TO BERLIN IN 29 HOURS

IS AIM OF TWO GREEN GARDEN PREACHER INVENTORS OF STEAM DRIVEN TYPE OF MONOPLANE

Frankfort, March 25th (Special to The News-Bulletin)

Flying by steam from Chicago to Berlin in 29 hours is the marvelous new development in the aircraft field. An astounding new idea in airplane motive power has been invented by Rev. G. Stroschein and his son, both of Green Garden. They have studied and worked on a new type of monoplane for several years, but they have not been able to get their plans near fruition until now. Rev. Mr. Stroschein is a graduate engineer, graduating from a prominent engineering school in Germany.

Rev. Mr. Stroschein has invented a new type of motor which has not been used heretofore in airplanes. He has invented a four cylinder steam motor which is capable of developing 1000 horsepower. Gasoline or petroleum will be used for fuel it is understood. It is said that the new motor is more powerful than any other type of engine or motor now in use on aircraft. Steam being more powerful than gasoline or electricity, an aircraft equipped with a steam driven engine or motor will be able to travel at a great rate of speed. It is understood that the new monoplane is to be equipped with two propellers and will be able to remain aloft in the air for 50 hours at a stretch whereas an ordinary plane can only remain up in the air from 5 to 6 hours. The new monoplane is to be of a special design all original with the inventor and will be able to carry 14 tons of freight in addition to 9 passengers.

The wings of the plane are 80 feet in length and 12 feet wide. Spruce is used for the ribs of the wings.

Rev. Mr. Stroschein made a trip to Boston last year to see about interesting some firm to build his motor, but he found the prices too high so he let the matter lay over until when he made arrangements for Chicago concern to build the plane.

The inventor has secured the services of B. Zechlin, a maker to assemble the parts of the new plane. Various parts of the huge machine are under way and it is understood that sections of the machine are in the course of construction in a house near the inventor. After all the parts have been constructed the machine will be assembled under a large tent. It is expected that the new plane will require an outlay of $30,000. It is expected by the inventor that he will have his plane ready for a trial flight by June. The initial flights will be made from fields in the vicinity of Frankfort.

The younger Rev. Mr. Stroschein is an aviator and has been greatly interested in aviation. Both father and son are ministers of the Evangelical church and are very highly educated.

The new monoplane is to be so designed that in case the craft was forced to come down while crossing the ocean it would float in the water. For sometime it has been known that the two clergyman inventors were interested in aviation, but very few people knew what a big project they were working on. If the new monoplane turns out to a great success, which the inventors hope it will, the aircraft industry will be thoroughly revolutionized as the new invention will outclass any airplane or dirigible now in use. Frankfort and the surrounding country will be "on the map" this summer if the present plans of the inventors carry.

close to her God if she loves worldly attractions better.

3.—But I think above all, I would show her the trouble it can cause her in her domestic life, and that husbands that love their wives do not feel content to have their wives dancing away the hours at night while he keeps the children. What is true of the husband is likewise true of the wife.

Now again, your second question, namely: "Whether the dance is affecting the morals of our land?" The best reply that I can make is to give you a quotation of a dancing master, Professor Glendennen, a well known public dance hall artist of St. Louis who closed his hall and came to Chicago ten days ago.

"It is criminal," he said. "The society folks are the worst. 'The dancing in the country clubs is worse than in the city. The women leave home with just a little clothing as possible and then check part of that. 'I had six big bouncers on the floor and could not control the situation. What is coming any way? I simply could not witness such carriages on any longer. I closed the biggest dance hall in St. Louis and I will keep it closed until there is a change for better. In all the world's history conditions were never so vile! WHERE WILL IT END? WHERE WILL IT END?"

Think this over. I am your friend, W. M. TISDALE.

P. S.—This is a "professional" dancer's answer. Do not pass it by.

NOBODY WANTS OFFICE

For the first time in the history of Frankfort township no one wants a town office. The Republican caucus was scheduled to be held at the village hall in Frankfort, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock but the voters of the township were not interested at all about town politics so no candidates were nominated for the offices of Justice of the Peace, School Trustee and Constable. Evidently town politics have lost their charm and it is like looking for hen's teeth to get candidates for town offices. The people's Party is not going to have any ticket in the field this year, Nicholas Geuther, committeeman announcing that his party would not hold any caucus this year. It was the opinion of the voters of both parties that the present incumbents of the offices mentioned be re-nominated.

ATTEND ORLAND PLAY

The members of the Three Arts Club of Tinley Park attended the play "All a Mistake" presented by the Orland Park Club on March 17th. The trip from Tinley to Orland was made in the motor truck of George Yunker.

Gen. Pershing Lays a Corner Stone

General Pershing laying the corner stone of the new Racquet club, Washington. The club will be seven stories in height and will be one of the most beautiful in the national capital. The general conducted the ceremonies, and personally sealed the records in the huge block.

Frankfort Will Vote On Hards Roads

The hard road question is an important issue in Frankfort township this spring. The following roads are to be voted on in accordance with the hard road petition which has been filed with the town clerk:

FIRST—Begin one-third (1-3) of a mile South of the Southwest corner of Section ten (10), it being the highway between the house and barn on the Fred Geuther farm in Section (15) thence running in a southeasterly direction up to the center of Section fifteen (15), thence East one-half (1-2) mile to the East line of Section fifteen (15), and the West line of Section fourteen (14).

SECOND—Begin at the Southwest corner of Section three (3), thence running North between Section three (3) and Section four (4), one mile to the Northwest corner of Section three (3), thence running East along the North line of Section three (3), one-fourth (1-4) of a mile.

THIRD—Begin at the Northeast corner of the Southeast quarter (1-4) of Section twenty-seven (27), thence running South one mile, between Section twenty-six and Section twenty-seven and between Section thirty-four and Section thirty-five to the Southeast corner of the Northeast quarter of Section thirty-four.

FOURTH—Begin at the C. R. I. & P. Railroad at the East end of the Village limits of the Village of Mokena, thence running South through Section eight (8) and Section seventeen (17) to the highway known as the Lockport and LaPorte road, thence running East through Section seventeen (17) to the East line of said Section seventeen (17).

The above described roads are all located in the Township of Frankfort, County of Will and State of Illinois, Township 35, Range 12 East of the Third Principal Meridian.

The said annual tax rate constituting the fund for the construction of said roads shall be fifty (50c) cents on each One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars assessed valuation of all taxable property in said Township including railroads and shall be an annual tax levy for the period of five years. The roads to be constructed in the order as above described.

GREEN GARDEN HAS HOT CAUCUS

A very hotly contested caucus was held in Green Garden township Saturday. The chief fight hinged on the supervisors'hip. The result of the balloting for candidates for this office was as follows: Wm. Bettenhausen 67, Wm. Nagle 58, Fred Hasenjaeger 42. Mr. Bettenhausen being nominated.

The next ballot was taken on candidates for the office of Assessor. C. Jacobs received 95 votes and George Bettenhausen 71.

For Justices of the Peace there were four candidates. Ballots were as follows: Charles Stassen 58, T. Anickrehn 62, John Bango 92, Fred Ebert 54.

For School trustees, 3-year term, George Bettenhausen, for one-year term, Ernest Knopp, both being nominated by acclamation. Ernest Miller was re-nominated for constable succeeding himself.

A very hot election is anticipated. It is rumored that Mr. Hasenjaeger may run independent for supervisor. He has held this office for 26 years.

A hard road question is also to be voted on.

Tinley Park Highway Case Set For Apr. 15

Tinley Park, March 25.—The question of who is commissioner of highways in Bremen township is to be threshed out again at a rehearing of the case on April 15th before Judge Regheimer in Chicago. This case has attracted much attention since the election last spring when John Bettenhausen was declared elected as commissioner. Shortly afterward John Clark, Mr. Bettenhausen's opponent asked for a recount of the votes and the matter was dragged into court.

Mr. Bettenhausen finally appealed the case to the Supreme court which handed down a decision in his favor, but granted the opposite side 30 days more in which to file charges. Mr. Bettenhausen says that the other side has not done anything further to settle the matter so he has asked for the re-hearing of the case set for the date above mentioned. Mr. Bettenhausen contends that he is going to fight the case to a finish and that he is going to put in a claim for pay as commissioner of highways for the past year. As a result of the fight Bremen township has been without a highway commissioner since last spring and as a result the roads of the township have not been repaired and no new roads built. Mr. Bettenhausen is in hopes that the case will be closed after the hearing above mentioned and that if the verdict is in his favor he will at once begin work on the much neglected highways of the town. Attorney Wm. F. Struckmann is the attorney for Mr. Bettenhausen and Attorney Francis Harper is representing John Clark.

Church Protests Action French Colonials

Reports have come from the occupied zone in Germany that the French colonial troops are mistreating the population most shamefully and especially the women. As a result churches have taken the matter up and have been petitioning Washington to take a hand in the matter and see if the situation cannot be remedied. Rev. A. Buddenhagen, pastor of the local Zion Lutheran church is in receipt of a letter from Rep. Elliott Sproull of this district acknowledging receipt of petition forwarded by this congregation and states he will do all in his power to get the matter before the proper officials. The Lutheran churches throughout the country have been much agitated over these reports from Europe and many protests are being sent to Washington on the actions of the colored troops.

WANT MUD HOLE REMOVED

Farmers and others using the highway south of the Bowman Dairy Plant at Mokena are quite indignant over the almost impassable condition of this piece of road on account of the big mud holes to be encountered. It is felt that such a bad piece of road should not be tolerated by a village having the wealth Mokena has. It is suggested that the merchants of Mokena take up the matter with the city fathers to see what can be done to remedy the matter.

LET US HAVE THE OLD TAX RECEIPT FORM SAY TAX PAYERS

The movement which has been started for the return of the old form of tax receipt is gaining headway. The taxpayers not only of Frankfort, but of neighboring townships are strongly in favor of having the old form of tax receipt returned showing the various items on which taxes are paid. Petitions which have been circulated by Levi Doty at Frankfort and by Joe Kohl, Jr., at Mokena, have been signed eagerly by the taxpayers. Mr. Doty recently took a sort of straw vote on the sentiment of taxpayers from other parts of the county at the court house in Joliet. Mr. Doty stationed himself outside of the office of the county tax collector and questioned the various persons who went in to pay their taxes whether they were in favor of the return of the old tax receipt form and found them very anxious to have it returned.

The News-Bulletin strongly advocates that every taxpayer in Will County take up this matter, and see that the old tax form be returned in time for use next year. The new tax form is entirely unsatisfactory and should be abolished as soon as possible. A big mistake was made in our opinion when the present tax form was introduced. Following is a list of the names of the tax payers who have signed the petition recently circulated by Mr. Doty:

The undersigned voters of Will County hereby signify their desire that the present form of tax receipts be dispensed with, and that the old form showing the several items for which taxes are collected, to be issued upon the payment of such taxes in each case.

Wants Better Service

Farmers in Frankfort township are much displeased with the present telephone service. One farmer recently remarked that they were promised good service when the Bell Telephone Company took over the old independent lines and then added an increased monthly rental charge, but instead the service has been very wretched in many cases. It is said that often times wrong rings cause an unnecessary answering of the phone and many times the line is cut out of commission entirely. As long as the farmers are paying a larger monthly rental than heretofore, they feel they ought to have a more efficient service commensurate with the rate they are paying. It is understood that a move is on foot to place this matter before the Public Utilities Commission with a view of obtaining relief from the present existing conditions.

MANY LOTS LAID OUT IN ORLAND

Orland is facing a revival of business. About forty acres west of town have been subdivided into building lots and these lots, are being sold quite readily. Quite a number of new homes are promised for this year. Mr. Mitchell who has been employed as conductor on the Wabash railroad has purchased a lot here and is going to put up a modern home this summer. It is understood that other homes are being thought of.

Orland is a good community and will in course of time be built up and much business to town. Orland needs a real estate office now to boom things. There is a choice room upstairs over the bank which would be an ideal office for some one. The bank is doing a good business in spite of the dull times.

DOES GOOD BUSINESS

Ray Cooper who recently opened up a little store in Orland has found business far better than he at first anticipated and as a result of his good trade he is going to move to town and settle down as one of our residents.

PLAY BIG SUCCESS

The play "All a Mistake" which was presented by the Orland Park Club at the Woodman Hall on March 17th was a decided success in every way. The hall was packed by a highly interested audience. A large number of Tinley Park young folks, members of the Three Arts Club of that town attended the play in a body.

Orland expects to get some hard roads built this year. Road building has been at a standstill for some time.

Mrs. W. E. Houchin and Mrs. Katie Durringer of Chicago spent Thursday with their aunt, Mrs. John Semmler. Mr. and Mrs. John Mattes entertained a company of relatives at dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Suhl returned Saturday to their home in Mokena after spending the winter in Chicago with their daughter Sophia.

MRS. NANCY SHARP, of Los Angeles, who says she received the greatest surprise of her life when Tanlac completely restored her health after she had almost lost hope of ever getting well. Suffered twelve years.

"After seeing the wonderful results my husband obtained from Tanlac I began taking the medicine myself, and now we both agree that it is the grandest medicine on earth," said Mrs. Nancy Sharp, a prominent and highly esteemed resident of Los Angeles, Calif., living at 921 Camulus street, whose husband is proprietor of the Merchants' Express Co.

"During the twelve years that I suffered with indigestion and stomach trouble I tried nearly every medicine I heard about, but nothing helped me and I lost faith in everything. So, my wonderful restoration to health has been the greatest surprise of my life.

"I began to feel an improvement on finishing my second bottle of Tanlac, and now after taking six bottles I am like a new woman. I have a splendid appetite, eat three hearty meals a day, enjoy them thoroughly and am never troubled in the least with indigestion or any other disagreeable after effects.

"Before taking Tanlac most everything I ate caused my stomach to rebel and I would suffer for hours afterwards. I was so dreadfully nervous that many nights I never closed my eyes in sleep, but now I am not the least nervous, and I sleep like a child. My strength has been wonderfully increased, and I have much more energy.

"I just wish it was so everybody troubled like I was knew about this medicine."

THE BLUE MOON

A TALE OF THE FLATWOODS

BY DAVID ANDERSON

COPYRIGHT BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

Jumping lightly from rock to rock in the shallow water of the pool, the bandit approached the cataract, the third leap landing him upon the flat top of a rock almost within the very wash of the falling water. Pausing an instant to pull his hat tight and turn up the collar of his coat, he sprang straight into the thin blade of the falls. His leap must have carried him completely through to the other side. It was the first the Pearlhunter knew, or even suspected, that there was an open space beyond. So completely did the falling water hide everything back of it that probably the man who had just leaped and the man who watched him were the only two who knew there was anything back of it.

The Pearlhunter stretched himself flat under cover of a clump of sprouts growing about an old white oak stump, and kept his eyes fixed on the waterfall.

Time goes slowly to one who watches and waits. It was probably not more than ten minutes, though it seemed far longer, when, without so much as a diverted flick of spray in warning, the waterfall flung forth upon the flat-topped rock a lithe and active figure that sprang lightly to shore over the two intervening stones.

Pausing on the brink of the pool barely long enough to shake his coat by the lapels and to knock his hat against his hand, he immediately set out along the bluffs toward the village, as unconcerned as if he had not just pulled off about the most sensational stunt ever seen by a Flatwoodsman.

The Pearlhunter slipped out of the cover and softly followed; trailed him up the bluffs, through the corner of the woods and out to the river road where it angles north through the cut in the cliffs; listened at the fence, near where the path crossed it, till the receding steps were well on their way to the village.

CHAPTER X.

The Candle in the Cranny.

All the way back to Fallen Rock the Pearlhunter pondered the scene he had gazed on through the chink in the cabin wall: the man's transfigured face; his actions with the picture—that above all—the picture. It puzzled him, angered him. That such a man should have his picture; his mother's—with the darkly beautiful face and wonderful eyes—warm against his breast! It was another reason why he should hunt him down.

The Pearlhunter was as brave as the woods make them but it is no discredit to his manhood to say that his blood ran a little faster as he stepped down off the rock into the water and waded through the falls. Every inch of the way had to be felt out with his fingers before his feet could be trusted to follow.

The roar of the falls had dulled a little when suddenly a sound came out of the dark just ahead—a sound like a garment rubbing against some rough surface. The Pearlhunter stepped to one side of the passage and flattened himself against the wall. Out of the dead silence the sound came again. A grin loosened his face. The very sound he had half expected—a horse contentedly munching his hay.

The Pearlhunter came out from against the wall and inched his way deeper into the blackness of the passage. It abruptly widened until he was no longer able to reach from one wall to the other with his outstretched arms. Though denied the use of his eyes, he knew that the passage broadly expanded just there and became a cave. He stood in the very entrance of it.

The next step—there was no help for it—light! Desperate and dangerous—the first spark, and the cave might spring to life. Still, it was better than to stumble over a sleeping man; or walk into a knife. With his revolver balanced, his face to the open cave, he reached his left hand along the wall to the farthest stretch of his arm, bringing his body as far as possible from the light, and with his fingers fumbled out a spot suitably smooth and dry—for there must be no failure. The match scraped. A tiny flame leaped away from the rock. It lighted up the place surprisingly.

The cave was not large—hardly twice the size of an ordinary room. The first swift glance showed him that—except for the horse—it was empty. The stub of a candle caught his eye, stuck by its own tallow to an outstanding stool of shale just beyond the mouth of the passage. He crossed the passage and held the match to the wick. In the better light he studied the place more closely.

The cave could not have been far below the ground, for an oak root had found its way through the wall. It was to this that the horse was tied.

For a moment he was strongly tempted to stay where he was till his prey returned the following night and then rid the Flatwoods of him, and trust what evidence he already had to prove his case.

But a better plan had been forming ever since he came into the cave, and there was much yet to be done; though the cave would have made a good hiding place during the coming day—always provided the bandit did not chance to return before his time.

Selecting a spot that he judged to be about right for the take-off, he leaped at the falls, and half to his surprise, landed on the flat rock outside. It was like breaking through the crust of creation into a new world. Marvelling at the small amount of water that had clung to him, he sprang over the two intervening rocks to the shore.

He hurried around to the front of the cabin, raised the latch, entered and closed the door. Snatching up some cold biscuits and strips of fried bacon, he hurriedly made six sandwiches and stuffed them into his pockets. Resting at the spring long enough to eat two of his sandwiches, he drained a gourd of water, crossed the branch below the falls and hurried away up the bluffs into the deep woods.

A mile and more north of the waterfall, Wolf Run bends west to double and twist and loop through a tangle of hills and gulches known as Fox Den, the wildest and most inaccessible district of the Flatwoods. The Pearlhunter had heard of the place. He resolved to take his chances there. The spot was no great distance above the three-gabled cabin.

Away up the bare front of a cliff his eye lighted on the mouth of what appeared to be a cleft in the rock. Wolf Run washed against a narrow ledge at the very foot of this cliff. He spread himself flat against the face of the rock and strained from crevice to crevice. It was a prodigious task, but all tasks have an end—either at the bottom or at the top. The Pearlhunter's task finally ended at the top. It had to.

The strata gaped apart half the height of a man, leaving a wide-open scar in the face of the cliff. It was perhaps ten feet deep, and seemed to be closed at the back by the dipping together of the two strata.

Rolling back as far within the opening as the converging strata would comfortably allow, he dropped his battered head upon his arm to sleep the rest of the night away.

The Pearlhunter waked with the woods. His limbs and breast and shoulders were so sore that he was half glad for the snug place to lie in, like a fox in his burrow, while the hounds beat up the woods at fault.

Lack of water was the greatest drawback. Thirst was already beginning to annoy him. He took out his sandwiches and ate two more of them, saving the other two until later in the day. The salty bacon made the water more tempting still. He drew back a little space from the brink of the ledge out of sight of it. The sound of it still tempted him.

Voices reached him suddenly, breaking upon the silence from around a sharp turn of the gorge down stream. He drew his face back from the brink of the ledge and lay listening. It was far too risky to look. His ears made out three of them—three tongues, all going at top speed, a sure sign that eyes and ears were not as busy as they might have been. Opposite the cliff where the fugitive lay, the steps stopped.

"What's that hole up there?" It was a gruff and heavy voice that asked, thick still with the flare of temper that had not yet cooled.

"Wolf den, more'n likely," answered one of the others.

"If we was up th' bluff cross there furmst the hole, we could see in," suggested a voice.

The other voices grunted; and the Pearlhunter heard them hopping back across the stream, heard them clawing their way through the tangled underbrush up the opposite bluff. The scar in which he lay dipped slightly toward the rear. He rolled back as far as possible, so as to have the protection afforded by the slightly higher edge; stretched himself on his right side; and waited for them to come into view.

Fortunately the sun hit their side of the gorge, and the Pearlhunter could see them well, while, being on the shady side, and back in the darkness of the scar, they could not see him at all. The three of them drew together in consultation. The Pearlhunter could not make out their words, but the manner in which they handled their rifles, which they had managed to drag up with them, indicated only too plainly the general drift of what was being said.

With a final nod all around, they faced the pocket, and one of them raised his rifle. The bullet struck the roof of the scar just in front of him, showering him with dust and bits of shale. The second fired. The bullet passed close to his feet and lost itself far back in the crevice where the two strata of shale converged.

It was now the third one's turn. There came the hot spit of smoke; the vicious slap of the report. But even before he saw the one, or heard the other, he felt something like a red coat sting his side just under the armpit.

His side! A thousand flames had got at it. Something warm and sticky ran down under his tattered shirt and made it mussy. The flames reached his face and twisted it. The air seemed to forsake the pocket. He crawled to the front of the scar.

He couldn't take his eyes away from the water glistening along at the foot of the cliff. The flames had scorched him dry. If he could only have one sup of the water to moisten his lips so that the breath could get through. He crawled a little nearer the opening; held his face out over the ledge.

The ledge seemed to be rocking up and down; the trees were dipping and going around in a queer whirl that made him dizzy. He had never known trees to act like that. The tops of the gorge were bending together. The gorge came together—slowly—shut out the air—shut out the sky.

CHAPTER XI.

Only the Hunted Know.

For a long time the Pearlhunter lay wondering why the gorge didn't fall in. While he lay and wondered, another strange thing happened—the very strangest of all.

The top of the gorge began to open—opened and let in two little patches of sky. He kept his eyes on them—two little spots of blue set between clouds of pink and gold; the gorge top opened wider. He came back to the two patches of sky; smiled oddly—they had transfigured; had become the eyes of the Wild Rose.

The shooting had brought her. Her arm was under his head, and she was saying something. A tinge of crimson deepened the pink in her cheeks when his eyes came open. What if he had heard! But she met his eyes with frank directness. He lay looking up at her a long time; trying to comprehend it all; the wonder of it!—that she was there!

She heaped him edge a little nearer the brink of the ledge, raised him, and he drank out of her cupped palm. Whether it was the cup he drank from, or the thirst that parched him, he took no thought, but it was the sweetest drink that ever passed his lips. She eased him back upon the ledge, her arm still under his head. A strand of her hair fell upon his face. She tried to shake it off. He put up his hand and covered it.

Her eyes dropped to his wounded side.

"I didn't know he was the Red Mask," she said, as if in pursuance of his first remark, "till those men came this morning."

Her next words were low and thoughtful. "I've wondered if it could have been he that hurt Daddy?"

"It was him."

The girl's breath quickened. He saw her fingers clench.

But there was much to do. Her eyes turned again to his blood-stained garments, and she set about uncovering the wounded side. There was little enough to remove—a shred or two of tattered shirt; a laying back of the torn blouse. After the first start at sight of the wound she became curiously thoughtful. The color mounted to her face; he tried to meet her eyes, but they turned away.

"Can you spare me for a minute?"

For answer he lifted his head. She took away her arm, eased him back upon the rock, and he heard her light step as she sprang around an angle of the cliff.

She was gone barely more than the minute asked for. When she returned she was carrying in her hands a number of strips—bandages—of white cloth. Where she got them—well, that's her secret.

The bullet had cut a deep, ragged gash just below the armpit. It had grazed a rib, but seemingly had not broken it. With that encouraging fact established, and the sting of the wound much allayed, the mind of the man began reaching forward to the night; the all-important night—when a certain suave individual in a frock coat would come to feed a certain horse. He said no word of this to the girl already binding the bandages around the clean-washed wound. She would have scouted the bare suggestion of the things he was planning to do the moment the dark was sufficiently dense to hide him.

She drew what was left of his tattered shirt and blouse over the bandage at last, laid his wounded arm across his breast and slung it there by a strip of cloth passed up around his neck, and helped him to his feet.

It shamed him that he was absolutely compelled to cling fast to her, to lean heavy upon her, or go back to the rock. His face was far too white to show the mortification he felt, but she saw it in his eyes. Lifting his well arm and laying it across her shoulders, she caught her left arm about his blouse waist and steadied him.

The Wild Rose seemed to have taken toll of every bit of sunshine that ever struck the Flatwoods. That was the distinguishing feature of her personality. That and her good, sound sense. Her face was beaming full of both right now—the sunshine and the sense. She was smiling up at him, he knew. He was staring away above her head—but he knew. The smile gradually drew his eyes down, out of the trees. He could no more help it than he could help leaning upon her. She laughed—a heartening little laugh—like the happy water curling against the ledge. He laughed back. He couldn't help it. The restraint was broken; the smart gone.

He glanced down at the ledge before leaving to see that no tell-tale blood spots or bits of cloth were left. A needless precaution—her woodcraft was as fine as his own.

How she managed to lead him, half carry him, out of the rocky and broken gulches of Fox Den and down the rough banks of Wolf Run to the cabin of the three gables she never knew. Neither did he. It always remained a matter of wonder to him. Who does know the source of power—that mysterious augmentation of strength—that comes to a woman in a crisis?

She led him into the house and to the sofa in the main room; the queer little leather-covered bed that had stirred his curiosity the afternoon of his first visit two days before.

The old man was not in the room. She must have caught his eyes searching for him.

"Daddy?" she answered to the eyes. "He often spends hours away. There'll be little pass in the woods today that he won't see, though nobody will see him. Poor Daddy!"

"We'll send for that surgeon tomorrow," he said.

She was back in a moment, carrying a pan of water, fresh bandages, and a formidable-looking brown bottle—camphor, the universal first aid in the Flatwoods. The blood-soaked bandages were deftly removed and the wound re-washed. She picked up the brown bottle.

"I am sorry to hurt you," she said. "But it will keep the fever down."

"You're the doctor," was his slow answer.

She uncorked the bottle and applied some of its contents to the wound with a bit of cotton. Hurt! It hurt so that he laughed.

"Anything to get ready for tonight," he grinned, under the bite of the powerful antiseptic.

"Tonight!" she repeated blankly. "Why, you mustn't think—"

"I must, though. Big things depend on tonight." She saw a sternness gather in his eyes. "He'll think I've left the Flatwoods," he muttered on, more to himself than to her. "It's what he's been waiting for. His game!—tonight!—and—!"

The girl saw the fingers of his right hand clench against his palm—doubtless quite unconsciously—while the knotted ridges of his great forearm bunched and swelled; but the full meaning of the muttered words happily missed her.

LIVED LONG ON FRUGAL DIET

Englishman Who Died in 1680 Proved That It Was Possible to Eke Out Existence Cheaply.

Thomas F. Curby, the champion eater of Massachusetts, declared that dyspepsia is the result of eating too little, and not too much. His Sunday dinner consisted of thirteen lobsters, sixty eggs, and one hundred oysters. At the other end of the scale must be placed old Roger Crab, the first vegetarian, who died September 11, 1680, after proving that a man could live on 75 cents a year. Originally a haberdasher in a big way of business at Chesham, England, a free liver and drinker of strong ales, he "got religion"—also dyspepsia—in middle life, sold his stock, gave the proceeds to the poor, and took to living in a hut on three-farthings a week. Instead of "strong drinks and wines," he says in his autobiography, "I give the 'old man'—he lived two centuries too soon to call it 'Little Mary'—a cup of water; and, instead of roast mutton, rabbit with bran, and pudding made with bran and turnip-leaves chopped together." And on this diet he lived to a ripe old age, surviving repeated cudgelings and imprisonment for witchcraft.

MRS. HAYDOCK SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Followed Advice of Her Druggist's Wife and Took
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 6824 St. Lawrence Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved Mrs. Haydock from an operation we cannot claim that all operations may be avoided by it, but many women have escaped operations by the timely use of this old fashioned root and herb medicine.

Famous Paintings of Our Savior's Agony and Death

It seems fitting that at Easter time one's thoughts should turn to the art galleries which contain the famous paintings portraying the crucifixion and resurrection of our Savior. For generations most of them have hung upon the walls of museums of Europe and have been an inspiration not only to lovers of art, but to all Christians as well who have studied and admired the conception of the artist and the manner in which that conception has been portrayed on the canvas.

RUBENS.

One of the world's most noted paintings showing Christ on the Cross is by Peter Paul Rubens. It has but the one figure—the dying Christ, hanging on the cross. The background is dark, the sky being almost black, which brings out more fully the real beauty and richness of the work. The head of Christ has fallen against the right arm and a peaceful expression is on the face, showing that the agony has passed. The body has sagged and the muscles of the arms are prominent. Blood trickles from the nail holes in the hands and feet, while that from the wound in the side has dripped on the loin cloth, which is draped in graceful fashion. The figure is well drawn, being a perfectly natural form of a tall slender man of the age of Christ at the time of His crucifixion.

Rubens painted many pictures of the Christ, but this one is by far the most striking and beautiful. He was the chief master of the Flemish school of painting, and was one of the most versatile artists of all times. Beginning the study of art early in life he worked under many famous painters, particularly in Venice and Rome. He was a man of scholarly attainments, speaking six languages, and was intimately acquainted with nearly every ruler in Europe, the majority of whom gave him commissions for pictures. He died at Antwerp in 1640.

DURER.

Another great canvas showing Christ on the Cross is the work of Albrecht Durer, and like the one of Rubens shows only the figure of the Savior. The background is an almost inky cloud with the fading sunset sky near one foot of the cross, and a few trees standing in the foreground. The figure is stretched on the cross and there is no wound in the side, the only blood showing being a few drops on the right hand. The body has sagged slightly and the loin cloth flutters in the wind. The crown of thorns is pressed down on the head, the sweet sad face is upraised, the eyes are turned toward heaven in the agony, and the mouth slightly opened as if He were in the act of speaking. The real beauty of the canvas is in the face of Christ, and it has never been excelled in its sweet, spirituelle portrayal. The painting hangs in the National gallery at Dresden.

Durer was born at Nuremberg in 1471. At an early age he displayed great talent in drawing and in 1485 his father apprenticed him to the great painter Wohlgemuth, with whom he studied several years. Later he studied in Venice and traveled to all the art centers, where he made friends with the most noted men of his time, being particularly friendly with Martin Luther. His coloring is faultless and the faces, especially in his religious pictures, are regarded as almost sublime in their dignity. He was a man of great piety and in sympathy with the reformation movement. He died in 1528.

FRA ANGELICO DA FIESOLE.

Still another Christ on the Cross stands out in the art world—that canvas by Fra Angelico da Fiesole, a circular picture, which hangs in the Academy at Florence.

His Christ on the Cross is considered by art connoisseurs as one of his best. It contains three figures, the Christ on the Cross, the Virgin and the Magdalen. Christ, wearing the crown of thorns, hangs on the cross. His head surrounded by a curious fan-shaped golden halo with three red stripes. The face shows sadness and is well drawn. The picture is rich in color, the background being a blue sky of the most vivid shade. The blood on the hands, side and feet which trickles down in three straight streams is a brilliant red, forming a strong contrast to the sky.

MURILLO.

Ecce Homo (Behold the Man), by Murillo, is regarded by many as the most beautiful painting of Christ in existence. This artist is noted for the sweetness of his faces, always with a touch of sadness, and in this he has excelled himself, for the whole makeup of the picture is sublime. A simple head of the Christ wearing the crown of thorns. The clear cut nose, delicate mouth and lowered eyes portray a pathos and spirituality rarely found on canvas. The background is dark brown, while the robe is a rich red. The painting hangs in the Prado gallery at Madrid.

Murillo was born in Seville in 1617, and although a poor boy became the chief master of the School of Seville. His early life was a struggle and it was not until after he married a lady of wealth that he was able to carry out his work to perfection. He painted many religious pictures, especially madonnas and scenes of the crucifixion. He died in 1682.

SOLARIO.

Ecce Homo (Behold the Man) by Andrea Solario, presents an entirely different conception of Christ. A bleeding head crowned with thorns is against a black background. The red robe has fallen from one shoulder, leaving the arm and part of the chest nude. The hands are tied together, one holding a long thin pointed stick. The face is almost stern with its tightly drawn mouth. The eyes are lowered and there is a tear drop falling from the left one. Indeed so remarkable is this painted tear drop that people stand fascinated before the picture, some of them weeping. It is a real tear. The face shows the Man in deep thought. The picture is in the gallery at Milan and is by far the most striking of the entire collection.

Andrea Solario, who is responsible for the work, was a painter of Milan, born in 1460. He studied in Venice for a time and on his return to Milan fell under the influence of Leonardo da Vinci and was sent by the latter to complete some of the former's work for Cardinal d'Amboise. His work was so like that of da Vinci, both in drawing and coloring, that it is sometimes difficult to tell it apart. Ecce Homo, his masterpiece, was painted in 1515, shortly before his death.

There is an old weather superstition to the effect that if the sun shines on Easter it will shine on Whitsun day.

There is another old superstition about eggs, and that is to rub over the face an egg that has been colored for Easter to have a nice complexion.

REALLY DESERVING OF PITY

Those Who Allow Themselves to Get Into the Habit of Self-Excuse Are Unfortunate.

The tendency to self-excuse is typical of the concealed. They simply will not see themselves for what they are—persons who have a great deal to learn. And because they will not admit even to themselves that they need self-improvement they remain perpetually in need of it.

Are not persons thus conditioned more deserving of pity than of contempt? Even their monumental self-satisfaction should not make people laugh at them. Poor souls! Life to them is a game of blind man's bluff, in which they are forever "it," forever groping wildly, but never grasping. No truer words have been penned than Ruskin's, "Conceit may puff a man up, but not prop him up." And how sadly hard it is to convince the concealed that they are concealed, and thus save them from the painful penalties of conceit.—H. Addington Bruce in Chicago Daily News.

"I noticed a young woman pounding something against the curb. Looked funny to me, and I could not figure what it was. People passing by started to run, looked again and crowded around her. I headed for the middle of the bunch and saw she had busted open her package and was breaking a lot of mirrors on the sidewalk, one by one."

"What's all this about?" I asked. "Oh, mister officer," she says, "I broke a mirror a while ago and if I don't break seven more right quick I'll have seven years bad luck. By rights they should be broken all at once, but I could only do it one at a time. And now, please, won't you help me get out of this crowd?"—New York Sun.

GRAIN COMPANY MEETS

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Frankfort Grain Co. was held last Tuesday afternoon. A dividend of four per cent was declared. On account of the big drop in grain prices during the past year the company has only handled one-third as much grain as in former years. Had a larger amount of grain been handled a higher dividend would have been possible.

NOMINATE BY PETITION

As no one appeared at the regular Republican Caucus last Saturday, a petition was gotten up at Mokena May and signed up and filed with the town clerk in time to get the following candidates on the ballot: For Justices of the Peace, Fred Leppa; W. C. Owen; For School Trustee, John Erickson. No candidates were put up for Constable which is an office every one seems to be shy of.

Two Reasons for Planting Trees.

Plant trees in farm gullies to gain the double advantage of stopping erosion and of providing valuable timber. In some parts of the country the locust tree, which furnishes one of the most durable woods for fence posts, is an excellent tree to plant for both purposes. In other regions the native short-leaved pine is recommended. Both grow rapidly, and in a few years either will form a complete protective cover for the gully, besides being valuable for its wood.—Youth's Companion.

Habits of the Birds.

Most birds' families do not keep together, but scatter upon leaving the nest. But the bluejay, bluebird, the kingbird and a few others less generally known live together the greater part of the year, says John Burroughs.

Leading Industries.

According to the latest available statistics the leading industries of the United States are as follows: 1, food; 2, textiles; 3, iron and steel; 4, lumber; 5, leather; 6, paper and printing.

State Crown of England.

The Imperial state crown of England contains one great ruby and four small rubies, one large sapphire, 16 smaller sapphires, 11 emeralds, 1,303 brilliant diamonds, 1,273 rose diamonds, 147 table diamonds, and 277 pearls.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Thru for Ye, Mike.

"O! hate flattery," said O'Brien the other day. "Flattery makes ye think ye are better than ye are, an' no man livin' can iver be that."—Boston Transcript.

Thatched Roofs Last Long.

Thatched roofs in Holland are exceedingly durable, and some of the oldest buildings still have the original roof in place doing good service. There are many instances of a thatched roof 200 years old.

Plenic Under Beech Tree.

When in full foliage the beech tree is remarkable for its close shade and coolness. The branches and such parts of the tree as cannot be more usefully employed make capital firewood.

Terror of West Indian Hurricane.

In the West Indies the natives have named the hurricane warning flag, which is displayed by the weather bureau, "el panuelo del Diablo," or the devil's handkerchief. The various hurricanes are named after saints of the church, and birth-dates, marriage dates and death dates are reckoned from them.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
THE JOB AND THE MAN

By F. A. WALKER.

CHARITY

FOR some five or six years we have had a riot of charity appeals. There have been drives for this and campaigns for that—tag days and all other kinds of days.

Rightly the people have responded with promptness and generosity to all the appeals, touching the bottoms of their pockets occasionally when the drives came very close together and always giving something, however little they were interested in the cause.

The war was responsible for the most of the appeals. But the war is, technically, at least, over, and it would seem as if there ought to be a let-up and a good breathing spell so that pocketbooks may recover and charities get down to a normal basis.

Charity ought to mean something to the giver as well as to the receiver. Real charity means giving real help. Money is frequently a long way from being the best thing that you can give to a poor and suffering individual.

If you saw a man in a pit and all his efforts to get out were unsuccessful, you would scarcely be doing him any very great service by flinging a dollar down into the pit with him.

Nor would it be the best thing to get down in the pit yourself.

The best thing to do is provide the man a way out of his predicament—a way to better himself—a way to get up on a level with his fellow man.

It was not the amount of money that the Good Samaritan spent that made his name a synonym for generous charity. It was the fact that when he saw the man who had been down to Jericho lying by the roadside "he went to him and bound up his wounds and set him on his own beast and brought him to an inn and took care of him."

There are too many of us who are generous with our dollars and misers with our smiles. We spend a dollar where a hearty good cheer, a message of encouragement, a little thoughtfulness would do a good deal more to help those to whom we intend to extend aid.

Charity which lessens the self-respect of the one helped is badly bestowed.

A loaf of bread given in such a way that the receiver thinks less of himself than he did before he received it is an injury rather than a help.

Better, he had hungered a little longer until his bread could have been obtained without cost to his manhood. There is a good deal of misdirected charity in this world. We give to surfers far away and close our eyes to those near at hand.

We give for show—from the pocket rather than from the heart.

We not infrequently make conditions worse instead of better by giving without understanding.

Do not think this is an argument against charity. It is not. It is an argument for wise charity.

Give as much as you can. Give as often as you can.

The mite was a noble gift for the widow, but unless you are a widow do not take that as the basis for your contribution.

But give wisely. See that a whole, some, useful and helpful application is made of your donations and the world will be better and you will be better for having helped your fellow man.

But above all be generous of your kind words, of your smiles, and of your encouragement. It is impossible to misapply them. You can be sure they are certain to help and you can be equally certain that they will in no instance and under no circumstances work a harm.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

CRANK

THE only apparent connection between a person who is obsessed with a certain idea, an eccentric, and the piece of machinery bearing the same name is that both of them are crooked—the one mentally and the other physically. But Donn Platt, who first used the word in its current sense, sensed another connection between the two.

"Horace Greeley," he stated, in the course of one of his invectives against the famous editor, "is like the crank of a hand-organ—continually grinding out the same old tunes." In addition to being cleverly phrased, the comparison appealed to the opponents of Greeley as being particularly truthful and the simile was quoted throughout the country. In the course of time it was separated from its original connection with Greeley and applied to anyone whose hobby bordered upon the ridiculous or even the insane.

The question of sanity being a very delicate one—as may be seen by a comparison of the expert alienists at any trial—the word filled a long-felt gap and provided a semi-humorous appellation which could not be construed as libelous.

Mother's Cook Book

I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise:
I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze;
I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread;
I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead.
—British Weekly.

MEALS FOR A DAY.

FOR a choice dish sometime on a special occasion you may like to try: Chicken Fillets With Almond Sauce. Sprinkle two chicken fillets with salt, a little pepper and a few grains of cayenne. Dip in olive oil and cook in a hot frying pan until delicately brown. Add to the pan one cupful of equal parts of white sauce and cream. When hot thicken further with two tablespoonfuls of flour rubbed to a paste with an equal quantity of olive oil or cream. Stir until the sauce boils, then add one-half cupful of thinly sliced almonds.

Almond Sponge Cake.

Blanch and pound in a mortar one ounce of sweet and one ounce of bitter almonds. Pound them two at a time, adding a few drops of water or white of egg to prevent the nuts from boiling. When a smooth paste, add the yolks of five eggs alternately with one cupful of powdered sugar. Then add one cupful of flour, sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Lastly, fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake as for angel food.

Banana Pie.

Take one cupful of sifted banana pulp, one-half cupful of sugar, one cracker, powdered fine, one-half cupful of milk, grated rind and juice of half a lemon, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-third teaspoonful of cinnamon, one egg and one-third of a cupful of cream. Mix all together and bake in a pastry-lined pie plate.

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

These questionings of Destiny
Do naught excepting weary us.
I don't care why
things are at all—
It's nice to feel mysterious.

SCHOOL DAYS

That there's my cousin Roy Ballard. Them striped pants he's got on's his brother Red's, but Roy gets up first, sometimes, an' puts 'em on an' wears 'em to town. Once he was ridin' Red's bicycle when he had 'em on the knees. That's why he carkin' down with his hands on his knees—Once me an' him shined one o' their pigs with his razor an' he knicked it, the razor—on me hid it under a board. You'd oughta hear him yell once! Gosh, he's strong!

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

DOMESTIC SERVICE

DOMESTIC service is getting to be so well paid that women who a short time ago would have scorned it as utterly beneath them are beginning to look toward it with a growing affection. Domestic science is being taught in most communities, and the graduates increase every year. Most of these girls, after their training, go into institutional and hotel work, into teaching, into hospital service, set up and lunch shops, and follow allied lines. But positions like these are not always immediately available. Put domestic cooking in the same class, and many a girl could earn a good salary and live comfortably until she found some more advanced work.

One way in which this will be brought about is in the growing use of cooks and house workers generally by the hour instead of the month. Such workers get more salary, but no lodging, and only the meal or meals they serve. But such workers are paving the way for the proper recognition of domestic work as a dignified and important profession, one for which adequate training is essential, and which has the right to claim respect and consideration.

There is a big future in domestic work. With the tremendous advance in electrical machinery for the home the actual work is growing to be both easy and agreeable. It is high time that the social stigma should disappear, and the advance in salaries is going to help largely to accomplish this result.

ILLINOIS
BREVITIES

Aurora.—The daylight saving plan will be put to a vote of the people of Aurora at the city election to be held April 19.

Freeport.—At a special election to be held June 6 the voters of Stephenson county will pass on the proposal to levy a special tax for the establishing of the patrol system of road maintenance.

Rockford.—Under the direction of the Rod and Reel club, carp, buffalo and other rough fish are to be seined from Rock river. The fish will be sold to the public at about five cents a pound.

Springfield.—Miss Mary MacSwiney, sister of the martyred lord mayor of Cork, is to be the official guest of Illinois March 31. She has been invited to address the general assembly on that date.

Chicago.—More than 100,000,000 tons of Illinois' coal supply was wasted last year due to improper mining methods, according to W. L. Abbott of the Commonwealth Edison company.

Morrison.—Under the terms of the will of Charles W. Baker, who died recently, the Illinois Humane society will receive his entire estate, now valued at $60,000, after the death of Mrs. Baker and a daughter.

Dixon.—Declaring the Dixon state colony to be the cleanest and best arranged of any of the state charitable institutions, Representative Ryan of Chicago, a member of the legislative visiting committee which inspected the institution, said as rapidly as new buildings can be erected patients would be removed from Dunning, which will eventually be closed.

Rockford.—Without having regained consciousness long enough to tell her story of the events leading up to the tragedy, Miss Helen Wilson died of a bullet wound inflicted by a rejected suitor, who fatally wounded himself after shooting the young woman as she was leaving an interurban car. The man was Arthur Bauscher, a wealthy Freeport florist. He died two hours after the double shooting.

Carlinville.—A day's food at Blackburn college, where every student is required to work, costs only 38 cents, according to President W. M. Hudson. This is possible, he said, because the institution has no "help" to pay or feed and part of its supplies comes from the farm. While domestic science and agriculture are the salient features of Blackburn college, there is also an academic course.

St. Louis.—The seventh producing oil well was brought in, in the oil field between Columbia and Waterloo, Ill. There are now 24 drilling and pumping outfits in the field. The most recent well at a depth of 544 feet produced 60 feet of oil in the pipe within 15 minutes, which, oil experts in the field declare, indicates it will produce 175 to 200 barrels daily. Columbia is 13 miles south of East St. Louis.

St. Louis.—Thousands of gallons of milk are being poured into sewers and creeks daily by milk plants in southern Illinois because there is no demand for it. D. A. Brooks, president of the Southern Milk Producers' association, with headquarters in East St. Louis, made this statement. The plants extract the butter fat and throw away the skim milk, he said. Thousands of gallons more are being fed to hogs to fatten them.

Chicago.—Cook county has a construction program for this year of 31½ miles of permanent highways, involving an estimated expenditure of $1,699,000. This is in addition to the 19 5-6 miles for which contracts totaling $837,000 were awarded recently, and other uncompleted contracts awarded previously. A majority of the commissioners said that they propose to proceed with the 31½ miles, barring unexpected handicaps, such as a combination of contractors to increase prices.

Urbana.—All states except Utah, Nevada, South Carolina and Vermont are represented by students at the University of Illinois, according to a survey just published. Illinois leads the list with 5,553 students. Nearly 25 per cent of this number come from Chicago and suburbs. Indiana is second in the number of students with 397, and Missouri third with 181. The states distant from Illinois are well represented. New York having 47, Colorado 30, California 29 and Texas 33.

Jacksonville.—Arrangements have been completed for the twenty-fifth annual state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Illinois, which will be held here March 22, 23 and 24. The conference was voted to Jacksonville in recognition of the accomplishment of the local branch, the Rev. James Caldwell chapter, in purchasing the homestead of Gov. Joseph Duncan, the pioneer governor, which was erected in 1834. It is to be preserved as a permanent historical residence.

Dixon.—The George E. Stocking Canning company and P. Hohenadel Canning company interests at Rochelle have been consolidated, the new syndicate being known as the Rochelle Canneries, Inc. The consideration in the transaction was over $100,000. The company will use the products of nearly 5,000 acres of land.

Emden.—Governor Small has accepted an invitation to deliver the principal address at the dedication of the Emden Community hall on April 19. The exercises will last one week and close on Sunday, April 24.

BEST BREED FOR CAPONIZING

Rocks, Brahmas, Cochins, Langshans and Wyandottes Are Favored by Different Producers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In selecting the breed best suited for caponizing, several factors must be taken into consideration, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Large capons bring the best prices. Consequently the breed should be large. It does not pay to caponize small fowls. Yellow legs and skin, as in other classes of poultry, are most popular. Plymouth Rocks, Light Brahmas, Cochins, Cornish, Langshans and Wyandottes are all recommended by different producers, as are also various crosses of these. Orpingtons also make fine capons, but the white legs and skin are somewhat of a disadvantage in this country.

Brahmas and Cochins possess good size. Some breeders claim that Brahmas are difficult to operate upon; others deny this. Plymouth Rocks and Wyandottes are somewhat smaller, but sell readily and possess the advantage of yellow skin and legs. The Langshan is large and is easily operated upon. The Cornish is probably most useful as a cross with some of the other breeds, thereby improving the breast meat without materially reducing the size of the fowl.

In Massachusetts the Brahma was formerly the most popular breed because of the demand for large birds for roosters. Later, crosses between the Light Brahma and the Barred or White Plymouth Rock became quite popular, while at present pure Barred and White Plymouth Rocks are perhaps most widely used.

WHEN FOWLS' COMBS FREEZE

Best Remedy Is Mixture of Lard, Quinine and Kerosene, Melted and Mixed Together.

Even in cold weather fowls should have good ventilation and fresh air, and this sometimes leads to frostbitten combs and wattles. These are not particularly serious if looked after properly, but if neglected may ruin the fowl's appearance, as well as cause unnecessary suffering.

Breeds with large combs need especially good attention. The best cure is to apply an ointment made of lard two ounces, quinine one ounce and kerosene three ounces, melted together and thoroughly mixed. The ointment should be rubbed gently on the affected parts once daily for several weeks, or until the parts become normal.

DISTRIBUTE BUILDING COSTS

Proper Share of Expense for Replacing Old Buildings Should Be Charged to Income.

A proper share of the cost for replacing old farm buildings should be charged against the farm income each year. Buildings may be constructed to last for 100 years, or they may stand only a third of that time. If the cost of replacement is not charged into the yearly accounts the whole bill will appear against the income for a single year. Depreciation charges for buildings, machinery, or other farm equipment are merely a method for distributing these costs over the period of years in which the equipment is in actual use.

DETAILS OF NONLAYING HEN

Knowledge of Little Points Not Absolutely Necessary for Profitable Job of Culling.

While there are many little details connected with the build and form of the nonlaying hen that are well worth knowing, many of which require some study and practice, a knowledge of these details is not absolutely necessary for a fairly good and paying job of culling the farm flock.

ROUP IS MOST DESTRUCTIVE

Disease Is Usually Caused by Drafts in Poultry House and by Lack of Fresh Air.

Roup, one of the most disastrous diseases the poultryman has to combat, is usually caused by drafts in the henhouse and lack of pure air. Every crack should be closed, if it allows the air to blow over the roosts. Also an opening near the top should be provided, so that the impure air may escape.

Quite in Keeping. A society woman called on a famous painter who, when necessity arose, could express himself with emphasis. Her ceaseless chatter did not permit him to get in a word edgewise.

At length a pause to take breath allowed him to say, "We had boiled mutton and turnips for dinner today."

"What a strange observation!" the woman exclaimed.

"Why," he said, "it is as good as anything you have been saying for the last two hours."

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

A SCOUT LEADER'S PLEA

By Wilfred A. Peterson.

There's a heap o' tasks before us
And it somehow sort o' seems
That the men who make great nations
Are the men who follow dreams.
We've been dreaming of world brotherhood,
Of universal peace,
And chaos would be certain
If the dreaming we should cease.

There's a dream somewhere within me
Of a nation strong and great;
Of a manhood good and noble,
With the pluck instead of "fate."
It's a dream of love in action,
Men who'll lead the nations far,
With the Golden Rule before them
As their leading, guiding star.

We cannot stop at dreaming,
We have got to form a plan.
For the boy of today, tomorrow
Will be the Nation's man.
In our boyhood lies tomorrow.
In our boyhood lies our dreams.
Boys will be MEN if we'll help 'em.
It is up to us, it seems!

Oh, life is full of battles;
But the greatest one to me
Is to help our future manhood
Better citizens to be.
Here's the secret we are searching,
Here's the mighty LIGHT we need,
HELP THE BOY UPGRADE TO MANHOOD.

BE A MAN, STEP UP AND LEAD!

SCOUTS AS FOREST GUIDES.

The plan for making scouts' agents in the conservation movement in the state of Pennsylvania, has met with more than the anticipated success. At present more than 6,000 Pennsylvania boy scouts are enrolled as forest guides, the proud possessors of certificates of service signed by Governor Pinchot, the state commissioner of forestry.

According to Solan L. Parkes, scout commissioner of Reading, chief forest guide and originator of the forest guide plan, the movement has two objects: one, the preservation and conservation of the forests and the bird and other wild life in them; and second, the development of good scouting, with a distinct new feature added in the responsibility for wild life and a greater interest in trees, birds and wild life generally which is strictly in line with the scout plan of outdoor life and interests. It is believed that the plan will be of great value wherever it is tried. The scouts of Berks county, Pa., have saved, it is claimed, during the year, over one hundred thousand dollars' worth of forest growth from destruction by fire, and this is only one of the 67 counties which are benefited by this splendid movement.

DOUBLE EAGLE VETERAN SCOUT.

In Topeka, Kan., they are proud of William Menninger. William joined a troop of scouts as a tenderfoot in March, 1913. By July of the same year he was a first class scout, with his eye on merit badge achievement. He qualified for 53 of the badges, thus making himself more than a "double eagle." He is one of the six veteran scouts of Topeka, an assistant scoutmaster, an expert examiner in bird study, a member of the special court of honor, has been an editor of the Topeka Boy Scouts Trail and served as assistant scout executive in the absence of the executive. At present he is studying medicine at Cornell.

SCOUTS, PROPERTY GUARDIANS

Boy scouts of Louisville, Ky., are enrolled in the local membership of "The Guardians of Property" and take a special pledge to safeguard property, especially at home, school or church. The same boys are called upon to assist in handling crowds at parades, the verdict being that they are just as efficient as the police in this difficult job—some change from the old days when the small boy and the policeman used to be sworn enemies. "Cheese it the cop!" now reads "Glory be! A boy scout!"

HERE'S A BUSY SCOUT TROOP.

In its annual report Troop Sixteen of San Diego, Cal., says through its scoutmaster: "My troop assisted in extinguishing five fires; James Lankeley, first class, rescued a woman who fell under a street car; the scoutmaster applied first aid to three accident victims and also saved two people from drowning."

GOOD STUNTS BY BOY SCOUTS.

Troop No. 1 of Upland, Ind., reports that Scout Rex Rhinehart stopped a runaway horse and also pulled a youngster out of a river.

Forty convicts in the Eastern penitentiary in Philadelphia, contributed $170 to a local campaign for the promotion of scouting. The men said that they gave the money because they believed that through the boy scouting movement many boys might be saved from "what we are today."

He—I had a realistic dream last night.
She—Indeed! What was it?
"Oh, I dreamed I proposed to you and you turned me over to your father."
"Yes, yes; and what did father say?"
"Oh, I don't know. I only know I woke up and found myself on the floor."

The Fatal Metaphor.

The young man was telling his sweetheart how he had been attracted to her.
"You were a lovely flower and I was a bee," he explained to her. "I was a mouse and you were a piece of cheese."
And then wondered why she rose and left the room.—American Legion Weekly.

Beating Around the Bush.

"My latest customer was a diplomatic man," said the prosperous bootlegger.
"In what particular?" asked the general prohibition officer.
"He opened negotiations by asking me if I had anything in stock that would create a little interest in a mince pie."

Health and Wealth.

"Doctor Pillers seems to be a fashionable physician."
"I should say so! He has patients at some of the most expensive health resorts in America and a waiting-list of people whose health will give way as soon as they get money enough to consult him."

Preferred Creditors.

"Want to be a musician, do you? Then I advise you to take up either the bagpipe or the violin."
"Why so, father?"
"Because, when there's any paying to be done, I notice it's the piper and the fiddler who are preferred creditors."

AFTER THE CIRCUS

Little May (to younger brother): And the baby's neck grew and grew till it was—was three feet long!

"Why, his language when he gets excited is enough to make any one's hair curl."

The Way of It.

"Well, I've got to go today and face the music."
"Why, are you in trouble?"
"Not enough to notice, but I conduct a band."

Balances Itself.

"But I must have my salary raised! Don't you realize that an actress' clothes cost more and more?"
"Well, but don't you wear less and less of them?"—Film Fun.

Teamwork.

"Was English society really shocked by Lady Quickhash's book?"
"I don't think so," replied Miss Cayenne. "My impression is that her friends professed great indignation in order to help along the publicity."

Aristocracy of the Cuisine.

"What is your cook's first name?"
"I don't know," replied Miss Crosslots. "Anyway, it doesn't make any difference. We wouldn't think of being so familiar as to call her by her first name."

CARRIER PIGEON'S HISTORY.

"I have a story I want to tell you," said Uncle Charlie Carrier Pigeon to the other carrier pigeons.

"We'd like to hear the story," they all said most politely.

"It's really a bit of history," Uncle Charlie said.

"Oh," said the carrier pigeons, "we thought we were to have a half-holiday."

"Ah," said Uncle Charlie, "I do not think you will mind this sort of history. In the first place it is family history and that is interesting always to the family whose history is being given or told."

"Then you will not have to learn your lesson if you don't want to. You don't need to study. You don't need to do any work about it. You may just listen, if you want to."

"History like that will be pleasant," said one of the carrier pigeons, "although I really like history better than any other lesson anyway. It's rather fun to hear what others have done."

"Do go on, Uncle Charlie, and tell us the history."

So Uncle Charlie Carrier Pigeon began:

"We have been carrying messages for hundreds and hundreds of years."

"Gracious," said one of the carrier pigeons, "I didn't know I was that old."

"Neither did I," said another.

"And neither did I," said a third.

"Ah, I do not mean that we, ourselves, have been carrying messages for that length of time," said Uncle Charlie.

"Ah," said the first carrier pigeon, who had spoken before, "I didn't imagine I could be that old."

"The same was true with me," said the second.

"I couldn't believe that I had been carrying messages for that length of time either," said the third.

"But our family have been doing this work for years and years and years," said Uncle Charlie.

"The art of carrying messages has been handed down from grandfathers and grandmothers to fathers and mothers and so on."

"One of our relations carried forty-thousand messages in one trip. And each message was about twenty words in length."

"Some of these messages were sent by means of tiny photographs, so tiny that they had to be read with the aid of a microscope or glass to make them look full-sized and so they could be seen easily."

"And our relative carried these little photographed messages. It was very wonderful."

"In that way we can carry more, too, without being so tired."

"Ah, carrier pigeons have always done a great work and it is a rightful pride we have to rejoice over the fine work which our relatives have done."

"But it is up to us to continue the good work, and I believe we always will."

"We always will for we always have, for hundreds and hundreds of years. Carrier pigeons have never disgraced the name of carrier pigeons and they have always gone on with the work which the others have left for them to do."

"It is the motto of the carrier pigeons—keep up the good work. And so while we haven't been carrying messages for hundreds and hundreds of years we are keeping up this task so Carrying Messages."

They were said that carrier pigeons have carried messages right down through the ages, and that they aren't going to stop now."

"True, true," said the other carrier pigeons. "We will always continue our work and will be glad we can do it."

"Fine spirit," said Uncle Charlie Carrier Pigeon, "but with such a history back of us, we cannot help but have this spirit!"

SEASONABLE FOODS.

In the great majority of American homes, because of lack of education along these lines and because of indifference in many, the meals are prepared for the sole purpose of pleasing the palate and with little knowledge of food values. Because of this there is waste not only in food but in health as well. When one thinks a bit in regard to the meal getting and remembers that every year more than a thousand meals are prepared in every home, even a small waste multiplied by a thousand looms up at the end of the year into amounts and sums that no family should be willing to face.

We all like variety. We all like foods in season, and fortunately, we do not like everything equally well. The well-trained child today is able to sit at any table where food is clean and well-cooked and make a comfortable meal, but unfortunately all our children are not yet well trained. Foods out of season, except in cases of illness where the appetite needs to be excited, or when used as an occasional garnish, are an extravagance which in most homes could be easily eliminated.

What is needed in all of our homes is more simple, wholesome, well-balanced and attractive meals. "Let us study to show ourselves approved, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed."

Cabbage Salad.—Shred part of a small head of cabbage very fine. Plunge into cold water and let stand until crisp and curly. Drain until dry, dress with sour cream and sugar or sweet cream, sugar and a dash of vinegar. Add salt to season.

Apple Delmonico.—Butter a baking dish and lay in a layer of tart apples cored, pared and cut in rings. Sprinkle with ground almonds and sugar, cover with another layer of apples, add crushed macaroons, pour over a cupful of sweet preserve juice or jelly and bake three-quarters of an hour in a quick oven. Pile on whipped cream and serve.

Individual Baked Apples.—Use the small glass baking dishes. Cut apples in quarters and remove all the core. Set the apples in cups to resemble a whole apple. Fill the center with pieces of fig, dates or raisins. Add to each cup one tablespoonful of water. Bake until tender. The skin is not removed from the apple. Serve hot or cold with cream and sugar.

March winds are blowing o'er mountains and vale,
Flinging the snow-drifts away,
Rivers run riot and laugh at the gale,
Skies are all sunless and gray;
Robins regretting their journey so long
From Southland, where blossoms are bright,
Seek shelter from storm, forgetting their song,
While swift fall the shadows of night.
But out in the woodland the children have found
Sweet bloom on a low trailing vine,
"Arbutus! 'Tis Springtime!" Their voices resound
With joy, and their joy shall be mine.
—Ruth Raymond.

DISHES FOR TWO.

It is comparatively no problem to cook a small steak, a chop or two and prepare and cook vegetables for one or two, but a dessert is not always easy to handle. The following may be helpful:

Caramel Custard.—Melt two and two-thirds tablespoonfuls of sugar to a rich brown and pour into two small custard cups, tipping the cup so that the sides as well as the bottom are covered. Have the cups hot and the caramel will not harden so quickly. Beat one egg, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one cupful of thin cream or rich milk. If desired a few drops of vanilla may be added. Set in a pan of hot water and bake until the custard is set. Turn out while hot on individual plates and chill before serving.

Angel Parfait.—Take two tablespoonfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of water, cook until the soft ball stage, pour over the stiffly beaten white of one egg and flavor with a few drops of almond. When cold add one-half cupful of whipped cream lightly folded in. Pack in a small mold in ice and salt for two hours.

Blanc Manger.—Stir one and one-half tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of sugar and add three-fourths of a cupful of milk. Add a pinch of salt and cook until thick. Fold in the stiffly beaten white of an egg, flavor to taste and pour into a mold to chill. Serve with macaroons or cookies and serve with:

Orange Cream.—Whip one-half cupful of cream, add orange extract and a little yellow fruit coloring until of a soft custard shade.

SUCH A NICE YOUNG MAN!

This Minister Evidently Not One of the New School of Blunt and Direct Speech.

Though scare-head scoops and front-page news "stories" do not come often from the department of Frank N. Wallace, state entomologist, nevertheless reportorial drones who buzz around the bee division of Mr. Wallace's domain may count always on at least one good daily story. Here is the latest one:

He was a young minister of the old school. He did not follow the modern doctrine of frankness in his speech, especially with the lambskins of his flock. Flustered and "fussed," he stood before a large gathering of smiling, good-looking up-to-the-minute peppy lamkinettes and in guarded tones reminded them of the pitfalls and evils of this wayward world. He reached the climax of his address and with a blush of ultra-modesty he said: "And, my dear young friends, do you know that even this very day there has come to mine ears a rumor that there is in this very community a band of bold, bad bootliners!"—Indianapolis News.

Good Manners a Business Asset.
The teaching of good manners in the public schools is being agitated in the state of New York by Dr. John H. Finley, state commissioner of education.

"Good manners," he declares, "not only lead to added friendships, social standing and progress in business, not only are one of the keys to the gates of wealth, but practice in manners is the most valuable kind of spiritual discipline."

Doctor Finley goes on to explain that training in good manners has enabled more than one person to retain his self-control in a trying situation.

"And self-control," he says, "is the edge you have on the other fellow."

Paying in Dresden China.
Little pieces of red-brown china bearing the usual Dresden mark are being passed from hand to hand in Saxony. It is not that people are bartering their cups and saucers or are getting rid of the contents of their china cupboards, nor are they making each other presents of the delicate porcelain for which the mark of Dresden has been noted.

A new coinage in porcelain has been put into circulation to supersede small paper money, and one of its valuable assets is the fact that it can be washed, so no one need complain of dirty money. The little red-brown discs have met with a hearty welcome, and the factory of Meissen has never sent out anything more popular than these little pieces of china that are too small for a plate, too shallow to hold water and not adorned with anything but the most simple devices.

Not Partial to Canned Goods.
Redd—What have you got in the can?
Greene—Worms for bait.
"Going fishing, are you?"
"Sure thing."

"Well, say, I went fishing yesterday and I carried the worms in a can just like you're doing, and I never got a bite all day."

"That's strange."
"Oh, I don't know. I reckon fish don't like canned worms."

Not a Complete Stranger.
A man who used to tramp ties on a railroad section was summoned as a witness at an inquest. He had been cautioned that he must be very exact in his statements.

"Was the deceased a complete stranger?" asked the coroner.

After fully pondering the question, he replied: "He was what I should call a partial stranger."

"Either you knew him or you did not," said the coroner sternly. "There is no such thing as a partial stranger."

"Well," he answered, "I don't know how else to describe him. He was a one-legged man."

Hundreds of people thronged the edifice to witness the impressive ceremony. A very beautiful League had charge of the service. The program was replete with many musical numbers. The Ladies Chorus of the Ladies Bible Class, the Hirsch Orchestra, took a prominent part in the program. A vocal solo by Herta Perschera, accompanied by the Misses Wauwata Oswald and Elfrida Kreis was much enjoyed by the large and appreciative audience.

Inventor of Electro-Magnet

At this time when oil wells are being struck in this country, it is interesting to see the inventions that were made fifty years ago for assisting in the work of drilling such wells. Millis Knickerbocker of Mokena, has a very interesting patent letter which was granted him on December 26, 1865 on an electro-magnet used for the purpose of removing any parts of steel or iron which might stop the process of drilling a well in case a part of the drill should break off.

The patent letter shows a drawing of the electro-magnet and there are two and one-half pages of hand written descriptive matter about the invention. In explaining the manner in which the invention operates in extracting pieces of steel and iron from deep wells, the inventor makes the following statement:

"The Magnet with its wire disconnected from the electric battery is first lowered until it has reached or nearly so the bottom of the well, a rope or any other suitable device being properly connected therewith for the purpose, when the magnetic wires are connected with the electric battery and thus a strong magnetic attraction generated and imparted to the poles of the magnet drawing them together and firmly nipping or grasping any material or substance which may be between its two grab-irons. The magnet is then raised, and when at the top of the well the wire is disconnected from the battery, thus releasing its grip upon the material, which can be readily removed."

"From the above description it is evident that a strong and powerful pressure can thus be brought to bear upon any material enclosed between or grasped by the grab-irons, the advantages of which are manifest."

"In lieu of using the grab-irons, a simple magnet may be used covered and protected as before described for the extraction and removal of small particles, it being necessary that the coil of each leg should be covered with some suitable casing."

"The patent letter was signed on June 19, 1865, by Mr. Knickerbocker. The paper on which this letter is printed and written is very heavy and tough. The letter went thru the patent office five which occurred in 1865 and still shows the tinct of the smoke which discolored the paper. The patent letter is signed by the patent office officials and bears the large seal of the patent office. This is quite an interesting document."

Did He Get It?

Awry was in the habit of asking his uncle for pennies. To break him of the habit his uncle told him he would give him pennies sometimes, but never when he asked for them. One day Awry went to his uncle's room, got down on the floor and said, "Uncle Albert, I'm just looking for a penny."

PEACE IN MEAT WAR

Report From Washington Says Strike Is Averted.

Members of Cabinet Take Up Packer Union Row, but Keep Their Views Secret.

Washington, March 23.—As the cabinet assembled to consider the controversy between the meat packers and their employees there were reports that a tentative agreement was being approached.

One plan being considered was that the wage reductions which went into effect Monday should stand; that the packers agree to extend the Alschuler agreement providing for settlement of differences by a permanent arbitrator and that the eight-hour day be agreed upon subject to peculiar conditions obtaining in the packing industry.

Parties to the conferences which have been conducted with Secretaries Davis, Hoover and Wallace refused to discuss the reports and cabinet officials maintained their silence. It was said, however, that a prospect of a tentative agreement had resulted from private conferences held by the cabinet officers with the packers' representatives and by Secretary Davis this morning with the spokesmen for the workers.

The utmost secrecy has surrounded the meetings thus far. The controversy is understood to settle largely around the wartime agreement as to wages and working conditions, which the employees claim the packers now seek to break by proposing a reduction in wages of from 12½ to 15 per cent.

The employees say the agreement was to be effective for one year after the war ended, while the contention of the packers is reported to be that the war actually has ended and the agreement therefore no longer is in effect.

Mr. Davis took much data regarding the controversy to the cabinet meeting. On leaving for the White House he said that he hoped to have some "good news" within a short time, but refused to add to that statement.

TO PUSH EMERGENCY TARIFF

President Harding Approves Revival of the Fordney Emergency Measure.

Washington, March 23.—The house ways and means committee voted to take up the Fordney emergency tariff bill precisely as vetoed by Mr. Wilson, and put it through the special session of congress with a six months' limitation.

This plan meets the approval of President Harding and also was concurred in by Senators Penrose, Smoot and McCumber, Republican members of the senate finance committee. Work on a permanent tariff bill will be started by the house committee ahead of revenue revision.

Stowaways Sent Back at Sea.

San Francisco, March 23.—Thirty-four Chinese stowaways aboard the United States bound steamer China were transferred to the China-bound liner Nile at sea and sent back to their native country, officers of the China announced. The transfer was accomplished without incident two days from Honolulu.

Your Old Corn Field Can Again Be Made To Produce Big Corn Crops

You can make fields that have been repeatedly cropped to corn again produce the old-time yields. The remedy is not expensive and consumes no time. It is applied successfully and extensively under similar conditions in many sections.

JOHN DEERE 999 PLANTER

WITH FERTILIZER ATTACHMENT

Stop in our store the first chance you get and ask us about applying fertilizer at the same time the corn is planted. We can show you a corn-planter which, besides dropping the desired number of kernels in each and every hill, is equipped with a fertilizer attachment that successfully distributes any standard fertilizer. It drops the fertilizer without any choking up or bridging of fertilizer in the hopper, and it does not let the fertilizer come in contact with the seed.

Don't overlook the "accurate planting" features of the John Deere No. 999 planter and the instant variable drop. A kick of the foot and the drop can be changed to 2, 3 or 4 kernels per hill, as desired, without stopping the team or leaving the seat. Change from hilling to drilling can be quickly made by means of foot lever, no extra parts needed.

Pea-planting attachment can also be furnished. It plants peas at the same time both corn and fertilizer are dropped.
